

TRANSYLVANIA COUNTY LOW IMPACT DEVELOPMENT ROUNDTABLE FACTSHEET

Background

- ☞ Transylvania County's beautiful natural resources attract home buyers and visitors alike.
- ☞ Development which is not sensitive to natural resources risks damaging the resources, tourism, and the potential for economic development.
- ☞ In response to citizen concerns about these risks, NC Cooperative Extension and the Transylvania Natural Resources Council obtained a grant from the US EPA to engage the community in a discussion about land use and water quality issues in Transylvania County.
- ☞ Participants include Transylvania County, the City of Brevard, the Town of Rosman, area citizens, natural resource agencies, the Land of Sky Council of Governments, and many other private, commercial and government stakeholders. Please share this factsheet with others.
- ☞ Please contact us if you would like to be involved. We would like to have all views represented.

The Project

- ☞ The Roundtable project is designed to get everyone with an interest in Transylvania County growth and water quality to the table to discuss land use, development, stormwater, tourism, and other parts of the community.
- ☞ A series of Roundtables will take place in 2007, each building upon the previous workshop.
- ☞ Workshops on stormwater management and Low Impact Development can be provided to targeted audiences such as landscapers, developers, or residents
- ☞ Please join us to find out more about the project and meet other interested citizens.

For More Information:

- ☞ This is a community-driven project, with many ways to get involved. You may participate in public workshops, sign up to receive newsletters, or volunteer to share information with your community.
