

How to Grow Early Vegetables

Why Produce Early Vegetables?

Every vegetable grower longs for the time when he or she is the only one in the area with vegetables to sell. Under these conditions, the grower can usually command a high price. However, this situation is unusual. Most often, vegetable growers compete with every other grower in the area and even those in other states. Over the years, a number of techniques have been used to produce early vegetable crops. Many of these tricks of the trade were developed by growers and universities. By using one or more of these tricks you can increase your profit potential. A few examples are given inside; you'll no doubt come up with others.
