FLEP: Education, Technical
Service and Cost-Share Programs

About the Workshops

The new Forest Land Enhancement Program (FLEP) calls for new and updated cost share programs including practices such as timber stand improvement and crop tree management, as well as educational programs on forest health and invasive species. This workshop will provide attendees with information and techniques to effectively implement crop tree management, timber stand improvement practices, improve forest health and face invasive species issues. The course will include both class room instruction and field exercises with extensive examples and applications.

Who Should Attend?

This course will be valuable to forestry and other natural resource professionals in the Piedmont whose work involves incorporating varied forest management practices to achieve multiple landowner objectives, improve forest health, and deal with invasive species issues.

An additional course will be offered November 3-6, 2003 focusing on forest land management and similar training in the mountains of North Carolina.
