THE STATE OF FOOD IN GUILFORD COUNTY

A food system involves the complex relationships and processes required in feeding members of the community from growing, harvesting, processing, packaging, distributing, marketing, consuming, disposing, and recycling.

Guilford County has a little over 500,000 residents contributing to its local food system. However, there are approximately 24 food deserts in Guilford County. The US Department of Agriculture defines food deserts as residential areas where at least one-third of the residents live more than a mile away from a grocery store. Residents in these areas struggle to have fresh, healthy food on a regular basis. The Food Research and Action Center ranks Greensboro/High Point as fourth in the United States for food insecurity.

A challenge exists to build a sustainable food system that is economically viable, environmentally and socially sound. To achieve this, we need to invest in Guilford County and our local food producers.

WHO IS INVOLVED

Our food system includes every person that buys and consumes food in Guilford County. However, there are many organizations working hard bring notice to food issues and work to alleviate them.

Some of the main organizations involved are NC Cooperative Extension; Food Assistance, Inc; Food Corp, Inc; Guilford College Production Garden; Guilford County Department of Public Health and Mobile Oasis; Healthy Carolinians; Guilford County Public Schools Nutrition Services; Guilford County Social Services - Food and Nutrition services; National School Lunch Programs, National School Breakfast Programs, EBT-Electronic Balance Transfer and SNAP-Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program.

BREWERIES AND WINERIES

Although breweries and wineries are fairly new in Guilford County, they are quickly becoming popular choices for promoting local business and agriculture. Many of these establishments offer tours and samples of their libations and you can even find their products at other businesses in the Triad. Be sure to check out their websites for hours and locations. Please remember to drink responsibly.

WHY BUY LOCAL

Did you know that if consumers in Guilford County allocated 10% of their food budget each week to local food, that would be $140 million back to the local food economy?

NC State University and Center for Environmental Farming Systems created the 10% campaign to encourage consumers to commit 10 percent of their existing food dollars to support local food producers, related businesses and communities in North Carolina. The 10% campaign allows people to pledge online and track what they purchase each week. For more information, please visit <http://www.cefs.ncsu.edu/whatwedo/foodsystems/10percent.html>.

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

This Local Food Guide is designed to make consumers aware of the benefits of buying and eating local food and how to find it. This food guide is a directory to grocery stores, restaurants, pick your own farms, farmer's market, wines & breweries, community gardens, educational resources, artisan foods & bakeries, and mobile markets. It helps consumers know about the places where fresh and local foods are available in Guilford County.

The website provides consumers in North Carolina locations of different farms, roadside farm markets and farmers markets access to locally grown produce, plants, trees and herbs.

CSA PROGRAMS

Community Supported Agriculture programs (CSAs) are share opportunities for farmers to offer to the public. Typically, consumers purchase a “share” (membership or subscription) at the beginning of the growing season. Then, as the season progresses, community members receive their shares, or a boxes of vegetables on a designated schedule. This helps give the farmers support at the beginning of the season and an opportunity to know the people whose food they grow. Consumers get the advantage of ultra-fresh, locally grown and created products.
